TUESDAY, MAROH'6, 1906. BURGLARY BY HYPNOTISM.

A new terror has been added to burglary. Hypnotism has taken the place of the revolver, and is proving much more offective and far less dangerous to all concerned. Quite recently in Sunderland (England), the great shipping port of the north coast, a series of most remarkable burglaries have taken place. Scotland Yard detectives, summoned to assist the local police in solving the mystery or mysteries, have succeeded in running to earth one of the burglars, but the arrest has served only to deepen the mystery. It is believed that a band of trained hypnotists, skilled in the art of mesmerism, is operating in the town, and compolling the victimes to cobey them without resistance. People wakened in the dead of night by the presence of robbers in their rooms have been overpowered by mesmeric influence. Then the robbers have proceeded about the work for looting the residences, paying not the slightest attention to their helpless victims while they worked. Those victims have, of course, been as powerless as if drugged, bound, and gagged. The capture and positive identification of Charles Graham. one of the hypnotic robber gang, for a time relieved the feeling of torror that pervaded the entire reity of Sunderland; but when he failed to give any explanation of the crimes or tothe panie of fear descended again upon the people. The first place robbed was the re-1797 sidence of a man named Darius Martin." The case presented strange features. Mar-tin was sleeping peacefully, when suddenly COTTAM & Co., Ld., a strange noise in the room awoke him. Astwo glaring eyes were staring directly into his eyes, and that the face of a man was pressed close to his own: For an instant? he sat there astonished, and startled, and frightened; then, he says, he lost all sense of fear; and surprise and yielded to some soothing, deadening influence as he sank back into the bed and watched, as if from the outside, while the man proceeded to rifle the drawers in the room, take the valuables, and deport. If Mattin reported the case to the police, who scoffed at his tale, and declared that he simply had been too Then idea of the situation changed with frightenud to move. little olater when William Morris, a (merchant, reported to the police an exactly similar crime, in which he was the victim. As the story of the first hypnotic robbery had not been made public, the police were 1474 startled, and began a rigid investigation. Then came an astounding series of rob-beries, all alike, and the police at once decided that some dangerous hypnotist was at work, but they found subsequently that more than one was concerned, and, from descriptions given, it was evident that four, if not five, persons, were using the mesmeric eye as an aid to crime. Quito recently they succeeded in arrest-SUPPLY ing a man named Charles Graham. He had! been traced from the scene of one crime. the victim of which had telephoned to the police within a few minutes of recovering from the hypnotic spell. Miss Bertha Holliday, who was positive as to his identification, was the principal?

aroused intense interest :-"I awoke suddenly in the dead of night" she told the Court. "I sat up in bed, and then I told myself that I must have dreamed an unpleasant dream that caused me to wake. Still, I had a dreadful, oppressive feeling that something was wrong in the bed and run, but I could not move, even an inch. The man's eyes glared into mine, and I felt an irresistible force creeping over me. Gradually all fear left me. I was simply interceted in what his next move would be. I could neither speak nor move, but simply sat there watching him. The match went out. I heard him taking things. Then I theard the door open and close softly, and I knew he had gone.

Still I could not raise the starm. The mesmeric influence of those terrible eyes was still upon me. " For nearly two hours I sat there in the bed like, a statue, as if turned to stone, unable to move, to scream, to cry. Then gradually the influence were off, and I raised the alarm.

AMERICAN FOOTBALL METHODS

At a meeting held last month in New York the joint inter-cullegia a football rules committee, to whom was referred the question of reforming the American game of football, adopted drastic rules which were referred to the faculty of all the major -colleges in the United States for approval, and which will, when they are approved as they are absolutely sure to be, completely revolutionise the game as played.

The mew rules, as finally perfec ed will absolutely prevent rough playing and will ensure an open and free kicking game, such as has been advocated by the reformers for some time. The session of the committee was presided over by T. M. Dennis of Cornell, who announced that there would be another meeting of the committee, at which time the question of the elimination of roughness from football playing would be threshed out and possibly the game put on a more solid and conservative basis. Four sub-committees were heard in relation to the revision of rules and in this report they described the brutal playing that was to be eliminated as follows: Striking with fists, clows, knees, or deliberate kicking of an opponent should be punished by disqualification for the rest of the game, and the offending team should lose the distance of its own goal line. They suggested that substitutes should not be allowed to take the place of any disqualified

Particular stress was laid on the words "annecessary roughness," and this includes the striking of a player running with the ball, hitting in the face with the heel of the hand, striking with locked hands by linesmon in breaking through. The penalty of this roughness should be ten yards. On the question of opening up of play, was agreed that any man back of the snapper-back be allowed to make a forward

LIEADACHE of a violent nature which necessitated the use of vinegar bandages round the head, were the lot of Miss Mabel Grace Mills, at The Woodlands, Park Boad, Wood Green, London, Eng., antil she found relief in that popular vegetable medicine Bile Beans. Miss Mills was troubled with constipation, and the headaches were the direct result of this complaint. Describing her sufferings and times so bad that it was just like a fire burning within me. These headaches were the result of constipation, from which I had suffered since chi'dhood. So severe were the headaches that for days I went about with vinegar bandages across the top of my head in order to esse the pain. If I stopped I would become so giddy that for a minute or two I would be completely dazed. At night I had terrifying dreams; and a ourique thing was, that I slways dreamed of death. ... In addition to these troubles 1 had scute pain in my shoulders and around my waist. When I was fourteen I broke a blood vessel owing to excessive vomiting, and when I got older the periodical ailment | The total area of the above Lots is 103,450 which women suffer from was very troublesome and caused me much pain. I used to have bad attacks of too hache also, and became quite sallow. "I went under several doctors, who treated me for disordered liver and constipation. My parents and myself all along attributed my illness to constipation, but this was in turn due no doubt to liver complaint. Nothing seemed to relive me. Some months ago my mistress advised me to try Bile Beans, so I commenced taking In a short time the constipation and headaches were removed and gradually every other ailment followed. For some months now I have been enjoying splendid "health. "These months have been the happlest of my life. I never before new what It was to feel so well, or enjoy such good

The above sensational case proves conclusively that Bile Beans can cure the worst cases of stomach and intestinal disorder. Perhaps the most popular these little histories is the none profoundly humourous account of how electors, intent upon obtaining the novel experience of a ride in a motor car, proceeded three or four times to the The Equitable. polling booth on the pretence of voting. Upon turning over the pages of a London Panch of 1857 a couple of days age the forefather of this witticism was discovered. .. It was pictorial and represented Hodge telling a friend how he had just been for a drive to the booth in the squire's "kerridge." With much bucolic chuckling explained that he "bain't got no neither." Mr Laver, who was elected last January for the Wirral Division had an unusual experience. He motored, over Port Sunlight after the declaration o the poll. Four thousand operatives were waiting for him in the theatre, and scene of wild enthusiasm followed his arrival. A handsome young forewoma cried, "Oh, I should like to kiss you, if dared!" The new member was diplomatic, and referred her to Mrs. Laver. She gave her consent, and her husband was soundly kissed forthwith. The Standard, somewhat oynically publishes this story under the heading a Penalty of Greatness." We have consistently preached the cult of optimism and we are consequently glad whenever we find someone else carrying on the good work. There is a magnificent moral attaching to the following anecdote. Addressing an arrangements we would be very foolish audience at Brentford the Archdeacon of if we were to allow our vanity to prevent Middlesex told a capital story. He was urging upon certain Church workers the necessity of persevering. An optimistic frog and a pessimistic frog, said the Archdeacon, fell into a pail of milk, and were in danger of being drowned. Very soon the pessimistic frog yielded up the ghost and sank to the bottom. The optimist kept swimming round and an optimist, and swam on. And eyen tually he had the satisfaction of sitting comfortably upon a pat of butter.

The fact was brought to the notice of the police a few days ago that two Chinese were collecting money for a hospital at-Yaumati, the existence of which no ene appeared to know anything about. The men made a practice of going off to ships in the harbour with subscription lists and in this way appear to have collected a considerable sum of money which they stated was to be used for charitable purposes. Recently they boarded the German flag ship "Fuerst Bismarck" for the purpose lows :of collecting, but as they were looked upon with suspicion the police were informed and this led to their arrest and they were brought before the Court, at the Magistracy this morning, charged with obtaining money by means of false pretences. From inquiriesthat have been made by the police it appears that the defendants were in some way connected with No 32 Temple Street. Yaumati, which is known as the Po-Tsai; Tong (hall). With them charity appears to have commenced at home and to a very 2. If there is such contravention, large extent to have ended there. The principal objects to which the money appears to have been devoted was the support of the defendants and a prescher who holds forth at the hall nightly, and for that receives a salary of $15 per month. Any balance went towards the purchase of medicine for the poor.

Further investigations are being made given to enforce the Ordinance in this and the defendants will come before the respect? If not, why not? Court to-morrow morning.

In order that their vessels may be identified and news of their arrival and departure be more accurately ascertained, steamship companies in Seattle have adopted the Coston night signal. The signals are displayed from the bridge of steamers by means of coloured lights and stars, each steamship line to be designated by a combination of colours and stars. At the present time eleven steamship companies operating out of Seattle and other cities on the Pacific Coast have adopted the signals. Among the number are the following signals:-Boston Steamship Company, red blue: Pacific Coast Steamship Company, red, blue, followed by red stars; United States revenue marine service, red, white green; United States transport service, red, white, blue; Oregon Improvement Company, green, red. The Pacific Mail Steamship Company of San Francisco also uses this signal code. Those vessels will be designated by green, red, white. The signal for calling a pilot in British and foreign waters is a blue light. The danger signal is a red light; distress, red, white, red; for pilot in American waters white, red, white. The apparatus of displaying the signals is very simple, consisting of a small round wooden box, containing the powder, which is set off by means of a brass rod affixed to a socket in which the powder box is placed. The pilot merely hits the rod with his palm, thus discharging a cap igniting the powder. A holder also forms part of the equipment, enabling the signal to be displayed in much the same manner as a Roman candle is fired. The stars, following the steady light, shoot up into the air, according to the signal displayed.

Important Shipping Deal. An important shipping deal was recently concluded in connection with the Transatlantic trade.

Hitherto, Messrs Furness, Withy, and Co. held jointly with the Chesapeake and PILSENER Ohio Railroad Company the whole £200,000 capital of the Chesapeake and Ohio Steamship Company, which undertook the carriage of the railroad's foreign freights between America and Europe. Four months ago, however, the British company commenced negotations, which concluded successfully a few weeks ago, for the purchase of the railroad company's holding, and have thus become absolute proprietors of the steamship company and its fine fleet of seven programme, though mapped out clearly and steamers, with a guarantee from the Chesalefinitely at present, will depend for its peake and Ohio, the Norfolk and Western, and the Southern railroads of the whole of their foreign freight trade from Newport News and Norfolk to Liverpool and London. Magnificent Sight in Samoa.

APIA, December 24.—The active volcano on North Savaii still continues to outflow Its lave, which has now reached the see in two places, and is advancing still in another direction. No one can predict upon any flate that we have when this flow will ceuse. Until recently no harm was done, but much useful land and some small acreaga of cultivations on North Savaii have been permanently destroyed. That in, they lie under from 10 to 20 feet of solid lava. A number of houses were burned as the lava flood passed along. This eruption opened its crater about 15 miles to eastward of the previous outburst in 1902, thus showing that the north side of Sayaii is pretty well honeycombed with internal disturbances. Previous to the break out three years ago, there had been no eruption within the recollection of the oldest inhabitant, and so far as tradition can be depended on, at least 150 years of quietude had elapsed during the interval of rest.

gazer upon this stupendous effort of nature is wonderful, beautiful, and awe inspiring. It is possible to traverse the country at the back of the crater and to ascend some of the higher hills in its neighborhood, and from good vantage points observe the numerous changes of action. For hours the volcano will remain quiet, while its glowing bowlful of white-hot lava will discoloured with peculiar smokes, which OF CANTON, LIMITED, to whom please C. M. S. N. Co. which make up weird effects to be viewed with ease from Apia some 50 miles away. Then, perhaps after repeated loud explosions, some of which tremble the very mountains on all sides, the crater will overflow, and the glowing lava, thin and liquid, will course down the precipitous sides, making for the distant ocean, which it altimately reaches in a very much congealed state. At times clouds of half-molten rock will be thrown skyward and descending splash the liquid lava in all directions Nature's grand display of fireworks. This great eruption has now been in full operasome six months, and at this moment it is grander than ever.
